

MORNING APPEAL

Official Paper of Ormsby County.

THURSDAY.....JULY 20

Raised Without Irrigation.

A Gazette reporter visited the experiment station on the 16th of June, and was shown a piece of wheat that Professor McDowell said he was trying to grow without water. The Gazette man gave it as his opinion that it would never head out, and so published it. Last evening he again visited the State farm, and was surprised to find the straw from 20 to 32 inches in length, headed out with wellfilled grain, with heads from two to three and a-half inches in length. The little patch is grown on a poor, gravelly ridge, and will probably yield bushels of grain to the acre. It is quite surprising that it ever amounted to anything.

Pyramid Lake.

Ranchmen living along the west shore say that the water in Pyramid lake has raised between four and five feet within the past two years. The wagon road constructed along the west shore of the lake in 1890, and which at that time was high and dry and supposed to be out of all danger, is now, in many places, several feet under water. The filling up of Pyramid has for months caused a very large proportion of the waters of the Truckee to flow into Mud Lake, and as a result both lakes have assumed something like their old time proportions.

Moonlight Picnic.

Messrs. Ambrose and Wiggins have decided to give the first picnic of the season at Cook's ranch on Wednesday evening, July 26.

The barber shops report a heavy increase in business since the Beauty Contest started, while the saloons think their business has fallen back. Men with red noses let up for a spell anyhow.

The destruction of the Prosser Creek ice houses with 20,000 tons of ice makes it absolutely certain that every ton of ice on the Truckee will be exhausted before a new crop is harvested.

General Weaver's paper, the Des Moines Tribune, announces that Iowa's delegation to Chicago will number about 500 delegates, representing all the agricultural and labor organizations in the state.

Mr. George Givevich was taken out of the contest yesterday, being withdrawn by his trainer Mr. Bryson. The latter says that it's costing too much for cologne water and silk neckties, and if the race is kept up it will bankrupt the house. Mr. G— can come back after he gets a rest.

Pasturage.

At the Werner Ranch, one mile from Empire. First-class pasturage, luscious grass, and pure water. For terms apply at the ranch.

LYMAN FRISBIE'S POSE.

He is Photographed as a Roman Senator.

Mr. Lyman Frisbie called at the APPEAL office yesterday and said that unless some mention was made of his chances on the beauty contest, he would stop the paper.

"I believe," said he "that these puffs of rival candidates are paid for in coin. I stand squarely on my shape and facial development.

"See here," continued Mr. Frisbie, taking a photograph out of his pocket. "This is a picture I had taken at Taber's photograph gallery the last time I was in the City. Mr. Davey the artist, wound me up in cheese cloth and posed me as a Roman Senator, delivering a speech on taxing the Lictors in the Forum.

"I think in justice to myself, it ought to be published in the APPEAL. If you will engrave it I'll stand the expense."

"When the picture was made, Miss Rutledge, one of the ladies in the gallery, begged a copy to send to Miss Frona Eunice Waite for the World's Fair. The pose is great and the drapery very happily arranged. If you can improve it in any way, I'd like you to say where."

The picture of Mr. Frisbie which is here reproduced in the APPEAL, does not do justice to the incomparable photograph, but it gives the reader an idea of Mr. Frisbie's figure, and the head is turned so that the glass eye is not prominent.

BEAUTY CONTEST.

NAME:

DIED.

At the State Orphans' Home, July 18, 1893, Dena Rail, aged 15 years, 8 months and 8 days.

The funeral took place from the Orphans' Home, Rev. J. W. Hyslop officiating, and the remains were followed to the grave by sorrowing orphans in carriages. Six boys of the Home acted as pall bearers. Deceased was a general favorite among the children of the Home, and her death caused many a pang of grief among them.

The Times-Review says the Dexter mining company of Tuscorora has declared a dividend of 25 cents per share. The Dexter has earned the right to be classed as a gold mine, the ore carrying but a slight percentage of the white metal. The Dexter, with two or three other promising gold prospects in the lower part of town, are the mainstay of the camp at present.

SENSATIONAL.

Jefferis Connected With the Murder of Miss Ayers.

Sacramento, July 18.—In the Jefferis trial to-day Alexander Starkey, a switchman in the railroad yard here, gave the most sensational testimony yet brought out by the prosecution. He said he had been out to Brighton station, where Miss Ayers was murdered, four times with Jefferis. In September, 1892, Jefferis first spoke about getting some papers and pictures that Miss Ayers had. Jefferis said she stole them from the Post-office at Lathrop. Before the first trip to Brighton Jefferis told witness that Miss Ayers was coming to town that night. They both went out in a buggy and were to get the papers and pictures in her absence. She was at the station when they got there. On another occasion witness and O'Hearn and Jefferis went out to Brighton together. O'Hearn and witness were to wait on the levee until Jefferis took her out riding, and then they were to go into the house and steal the papers and pictures. They did not secure them, and Jefferis was much put out about it on his return from the drive with Miss Ayers.

On another occasion witness went out to Brighton with the defendant, who told him that Miss Ayers was coming down to his room that night and witness could easily get the papers and pictures. Jefferis wanted witness to overhear the conversation between him and the woman. Circumstances failed this plan. The scheme was for Starkey to finally announce himself as a policeman sent to follow Jefferis by Nell, meaning Jefferis' present wife. Witness was to warn Miss Ayers to quite writing and let Jefferis alone. At that time he wanted to get $110 from her. He claimed she had some money belonging to him. After one of the trips Jefferis said just after returning from the station that Miss Ayers wanted him to elope with her to Montana. He would not do so because he did not want to disgrace his family. Jefferis said she used to write to him and to his wife, telling how she loved him.

The sensation of the day was produced when witness identified a false face or mask, an old slouch hat, linen duster and a revolver, Starkey swore that one night Jefferis brought them in a package to his room and said, "You may want these."

Dangers of Slang.

There is a young lady in Carson who is very fond of picking up some new slang phrase and running it.

In San Francisco she heard some one say, "Thank God and a few other gentlemen," and she brought it up to Carson with her.

A few days ago she was in a shoe store buying some baby shoes for a relatives baby.

"I want some baby shoes for a baby a year old?"

"Not your own baby is it?" queried the shoe dealer.

"No, thank God and a few other gentlemen," was the reply, and as soon as the words were out of her mouth, she realized her mistake, and when she saw everybody grinning all over the store, she wished she was somewhere else. She vows she will never use that slang again.

A Carsonite Glad to Get Back.

Tim Dempsey returned this morning from a trip to San Francisco where he went with the intention of looking for a place to move his business to, but he found it so dull in that section that he was happy in thought that he had a business in Nevada to return to.

To illustrate how hard the times are in San Francisco, Mr. Dempsey told of an incident that occurred while he was there. He met some of his old time friends, two of which are on the finance committee for the mid-winter fair, and who had just returned from a collecting tour. They expressed themselves as thoroughly disgusted and ready to give it up, some of the most prominent merchants having flatly refused to put up a cent.—Gazette.
